how curious! my most sought after treasure, and here you are requesting before i could do it.

here's the commercial boot version:

<http://btjunkie.org/torrent?do=stat&id=29089f58b55724287ece24419fce83868db78aa53ae3>

notice it includes songs that were supposed to be missing?

all i have is this same version, and i'm DYING for the other songs. i will argue to the death with anyone about this show-- there is no better version of blank page. anywhere. ever.

DOES ANYONE HAVE THE OTHER SONGS?!?!?!?!?

That looks like a rip of the show that was broadcast on tv dude.

unfortunately, i agree. i think that's how that bootleg was made in the first place.

Just to let you know, i do have this show, i'll upload it for a direct download soon.

I feel a little morbid doing it though.

Rest in peace Bernadette O'Brien

"Dublin-The Point Theatre, May 11,1996, 9:30 pm. 7000 fans filled the floor at The Smashing Pumpkins hit the stage. 110 security guards scrambled behind the barricades to control the flow of the mosh pits as they formed as the Pumpkins began to play. A few minutes into the show Billy Corgan could feel that something was wrong. He told the crowd to take a step back. At 10 pm, Billy said that they would stop the show if they didn'tstop moshing. For Bernadette O'Brien, a 17 year high school student, it was already too late. O'Brien, who was near the front of the stage with a friend and two cousins crushed by the overpowering crowd. When informed of the girl's injuries, Corgan told the crowd, "I'm sorry we can't play on. The gig's over. There's a girl out there who's nearly dying. We as human beings cannot play up here while people are getting seriously hurt down there. "The following day, Bernadette was taken off life-support at Mater Hospital in Dublin. It was announced that she died from massive internal injuries. The Pumpkins sent flowers to her funeral and released a statement extending their condolences to Bernadette O'Briens family and friends.

Upon hearing the news from Dublin, many North American cities wanted to decline the band the chance to play. For the rest of the Infinite Sadness Tour, there would be numerous location where the floor space would contain floor seats so their would be no moshing and no chance of a tragedy like this one happening again. Most "Alternative" bands insist the promoters allow moshing. The Smashing Pumpkins have been one of the most outspoken bands in criticizing reckless violence in the mosh pit."

it is weird listening to that '96 show. real fucking downer.

just to clarify, that is NOT the show in question here. but good to remember anyway, poor girl.
