
STICKY: Site suggestions and questions

Posted by Murder McMurderson - 2006/02/13 17:38

What would you like to see added to the site? Is there anything you would liked changed? Are there any errors that you've run into while using this site?

hey, i love what you got going here (im in school right now in study hall, and suprisingly this site isnt blocked)... as far as changes, i like the site as it is, i love the caption contest but i was wondering about putting up more then one reply to that because i thought of a ton of captions after i posted the first one.... more animations... those things are hilarious! and most of all i think this site will become really kick ass once a lot of people start joinin.... ive been telling everyone to sign up!

oh, no sorry i didnt explain it right.... i can leave a comment more then once if i wanted to, but would the site admin really care or not? thats what i was wondering.... cuse then there would be like 100s of captions from one guy up there and then its sorta stacked if its a contest

Re: Site suggestions

Posted by Dead - 2006/02/14 12:44

Is there a link that goes back to the main site? I can't find one.

If you can add a quick reply function that would be convenient.

Re: Site suggestions

Posted by thatscooliguess - 2006/02/14 14:32

hey, i was just wondering, what is the site editorial for? is it like a newspaper editorial, where people just rant about the pumpkins in verious opinionated topics.... cuse that would be awsome to get some editorials going! and if you need writers id be happy to volunteer... :billy

Re: STICKY: Site suggestions

Posted by Cherub_God - 2006/05/30 12:42

not really a suggestion but just my personal opinion the current logo (or banner) in the background it doesn't seem to cool since there is too much black spots in the left and right side and oh...sorry for my ignorance but is that a SP or Zwan photo? I think that with the return of the Pumpkins they would like to see some of their photos and no of Zwan or of TFE

Re: STICKY: Site suggestions

Posted by Murder McMurderson - 2006/05/30 12:49

The banner picture changes from time to time, but yeah, there is a lot of black. It's mostly because of the design of the template. The right and left corners remain stationary while the center expands or contracts depending on the user's resolution or window size, so in order for the banner to seem seamless, it must use a repetitive pattern or solid color to fill in the gaps.

thats a really great idea...ive seen that done before and it looks like alot of fun. especially if artworks or something were submitted with it to make it a bit different, seeing as this site has a great focus on submission of talent.

id like to see a focus on the promotion of safety, i know you guys's do what u can and u cant moderate everything but a perhaps a promotional thread to remind users that harassment, sexual or otherwise on the internet is unaccetable and considered criminal.....(i dont think people are acknowledging it at registration). I by no means condone full censorship and it generally isnt possible especially with the chat section etc but a general reminder that zero tolerance on this sort of thing would be good to see, i apologise if i seem heavy handed but i was very taken aback and offended by what a member had said to me a couple of nights back and their general demeanor and i would be disgusted if it were happening to any of the younger female and male members of this board. (gosh i sound like i should be driving an SUV)

Re: STICKY: Site suggestions

You can ignore private messages from a certain user, but not messages on the board. That would lead to fragmented threads. If you have an issue with a user, it's better to let me or that user know.

Re: STICKY: Site suggestions

Posted by venison - 2006/10/15 13:52

I have a problem with one of the changes made to the site. Specifically, I feel uncomfortable with the advertisements for other bands on the main page. I hate to sound like a picky purist, but the reason I visit these Smashing Pumpkins websites is to be in a safe haven where I can envelop myself in the shared appreciation of the work of an artist that I love. Seeing other bands that I feel indifferent, or even antagonistic towards, feels like an intrusion on this world that I feel comforted by, and I even feel a little insulted by the suggestion that since I like the Smashing Pumpkins, there's a good chance that I must like these other bands as well.

I try to think of how it would be if the advertisements only displayed bands that I liked (like The Cure, Sonic Youth, Radiohead, New Order...); and although it probably would end up agreeing with me, I think it would be unfair to other people who do not share my specific musical interests. Everybody who loves the Smashing Pumpkins has a diverse set of musical tastes, and I think we all agree that that's part of what makes the band special--its ability to draw from a variety of styles and aesthetics. "Narrowing down" the fans' possible tastes, and treating them like an advertising demographic is not something that contributes to the personal sense of community that draws me here.

So please, I ask the site administrators to reconsider having foreign band propaganda on this website. I realize that I could just try to ignore it, but for the reasons I explained above, its mere presence just makes me feel violated and uncomfortable.

Re: STICKY: Site suggestions

Posted by Murder McMurderson - 2006/10/15 14:02

The advertisements on the site are automated by computer. They're not there to insult you. Try not to dwell on it.

Re: STICKY: Site suggestions

Posted by venison - 2006/10/15 14:28

Thank God for Firefox. I was able to block those images from Google Ads. So I've found a way to deal with it. But please understand, and I'm sure you do, that The Smashing Pumpkins and their music are a great source of personal and emotional comfort for me--and I don't have many of these things in my life. And like with any other work of great beauty, it's heartbreaking to see it become trivialized. I'm sorry if I come across as taking this too seriously; but it is a serious matter for me.

TheFutureEmbrace board, NOZ etc, is that majority of the traffic still goes to the big guys - Blamo and Netphoria. The small boards should conglomerate into a big one and kick their asses.

Anyways.. I'm done.

I actually like small boards better. The bigger they get, the more impersonal they become, and it feels more like masses of one-sentence comments rather than involved personal discussions. I remember loving this site so much when it was just beginning...the discussions were more in depth, the names were always familiar, and the connections through the music felt closer.

...Not to say, of course, that I don't love this site, but, well...
Maybe I'll give TFE Forums a try as well. ;)

I think I've made two or three posts on Netphoria and gave up.

I kinda like small boards too. People get to know each other a lot better. And you're still able to track your posts and the replies to your posts several days after. I kinda get lost in big boards. hahaha
Believe link=topic=40.msg9779#msg9779 date=1161616938]
Maybe we should start a new section of threads that you can only go to if you have a certain number of posts. This way we don't get flooded with overnight fans when the new album drops. I'm sure the forum will be overrun with riff raff next year and I do hate how impersonal threads can get. It's not fair to those of us who have been here even before the group announced they were getting back together.

The chat room by comparison to almost every other room I've seen is excellent, I guess it's just plain laziness that you have to click it and load it in a seperate window.

Perhaps keep the room and have a lil shoutbox on the main forum window?

The site is often experiencing extream laggyness. I asked about this a while ago, i cant remember if you gave an answer, but Every once and a while the site will hardly even work it goes so slow for roughly 45 mins to an hour. In my time about 11-11.45 or 12.

And sometimes its worse, sometimes it wont even post the thing at all, it will try and load for about 5 mins then say "sorry, you cannot post new thread on this board" even if i wasnt trying to start a new thread. When i then go back to try again, the post i had writen is gone, which is extreamly irritating when you have writen something 500 words long. My first though would be that my connection is laggy, but testing other websites at the same time found that they work fine.

Are there many others experiencing simmlar problems? and is mc murderson aware of the problems with the server?

Re: STICKY: Site suggestions

There was a problem this morning, but it looks like it's okay now. I haven't experienced extreme lagging in a few weeks. There are downtimes occasionally. The site is as optimized as I can get it, but since it's on a shared network, there are things I can not control.

Is there a way for members to move a topic (one that they created) to a different location? That is if they find that the same topic already exists in the forum.

I don't like the idea of rating users, and having users feel bad because they don't have a high rating.

Re:STICKY: Site suggestions and questions

well, since it's this place, I dont think we'd have too much of a problem with that. I think the one people with low ratings would be the people constantly putting OTHERS down.

We're all pretty nice here.

Murder, what do you think of an instrument tab section? It's incredibly frustrating to look for tabs on the internet for songs, as it's usually just one tab, copied and pasted to other locations, and it's not even right in the first place. It could be a user submitted type of thing?

Re:STICKY: Site suggestions and questions

I think a Tab section is a good idea. I want to add more sections to the Information menu like Tabs, Biographies, and Timeline. But they're going to take a lot of work, especially tbs, because I have a bad comprehension of how they work and how they should look. Someone else would have to be in charge of it.

Re:STICKY: Site suggestions and questions

As far as Pumpkins related tab sites, Obscured has done pretty well. And I also use SPFC's tab section quite frequently.

<http://www.Obscured.com/flash.html>

<http://www.spfc.org/music/gtab.html>

Also

<http://www.blamo.org/sp/tabs/>

<http://www.netphoria.org/rottenapples/sp.htm>

Another idea would be to put a tab in with the song list information. Like they do on Landslide

<http://landslide.2007.org/omnipedia/1979.htm>

Re:STICKY: Site suggestions and questions

Posted by Murder McMurderson - 2008/01/20 08:25

So are plain text files preferred? They all look somewhat sloppy. Although Obscured's look very organized. Is there a reason why they don't use formatted text?

Re:STICKY: Site suggestions and questions

Posted by PistolPete - 2008/01/20 08:38

That's pretty much the standard. Tabs are intended to be very basic and reader friendly. There is software that will write tabs, but for internet purposes a txt file is the way to go. I've tried to format them differently, but it's very time consuming and frustrating.

Re:STICKY: Site suggestions and questions

Posted by MklCorgan - 2008/01/20 13:32

In order for a tab to be readable it must be in a font whose characters are equally wide, so no character takes more space than the previous one, this is called a monospace font so the standard font to use might be "Courier" or "Courier New", if you want to use something different than plain text, you may want to consider this ;)

Re:STICKY: Site suggestions and questions

I agree... but watch the width. Some tab sections can be wide depending on the song, so it might be rough having to scroll over all the time. Not sure if you can change this in anyway though.. so looks good to me.

Re:STICKY: Site suggestions and questions

Posted by Murder McMurderson - 2008/01/23 12:13

Okay, PistolePete, Rivers and Teej have been given Publisher abilities and the ability to upload tabs.

To upload your tabs txt files go here:

http://www.thepumpkins.net/component/option,com_joomla_flash_uploader/Itemid,164/

You may want to bookmark that.

Please name your text files with the name of the song. I don't know if you guys will be writing your own tabs or finding them, or a combination of both. It's up to you. Please make sure they're neat and not very cluttered.

Once you upload your txt file with the uploader they will be located at:

<http://www.thepumpkins.net/tab/> (can't visit directly)

For example, the test tab file is located at:

<http://www.thepumpkins.net/tab/test.txt>

The uploader will show you what files are in the folder. If you need to make a change to a file, you can download it and then reupload it and it will be replaced.

Now you need to make a page to display your tab. Go to the Tab section and click on the "New" button:

<http://img136.imageshack.us/img136/7760/newhc0.jpg>

Or if you need to edit a page, click on the edit icon:

<http://img261.imageshack.us/img261/4012/editwl8.jpg>

Please only do this in the Tabs section.

Then you will see this:

Here's what you do here:

In Title put: Tab - Song Name (capitalize the first letter of each word)

In Category select Tabs obviously.

Ignore Intro Text

In Main Text copy and paste this basic HTML:

Download Link

Here's what you need to replace in this code:

In the two places where it says test.txt replace "test" with whatever the name of you file is.

Where it says Download Link you can replace it with the name of the song.

Where it says 600 is the height of the tab area. I'll let you decide what the number should be.

Now the work is done.

<http://img212.imageshack.us/img212/7213/publishedjr4.jpg>

On the Publishing tab, select Published to automatically make the page public or Unpublished if it's not ready.

<http://img263.imageshack.us/img263/7183/approveaf0.jpg>

Click the blue button to save and apply or the red x to cancel.

That's it. :) I know it look like a lot, but it's really not at all. If you need any help, just ask me. Thanks for the help. :D

Credit should be given. It looks like the author usually includes their name on the tabs. well.. Pete, are you going to sit down and individually tab out all of the pumpkins songs? I was planning on altering existing tabs until they are right, and giving credit where credit is due.

More power to you if you want to create all your own tabs, but that's a heck of a lot of work, just for one song even.

Re:STICKY: Site suggestions and questions

Posted by PistolPete - 2008/01/24 05:20

No, I was just saying everyone should be able to upload their own tabs, just like uploading pictures in the gallery section. Although tabs are not copyrighted, it's wrong to take someone else's work (without asking of course). Besides most tabs have some sort of message like this at the top.

 P L E A S E N O T E *****

You may only use this tab for private study, research, etc.
Do not change, deface, mutilate, steal or alter this tab.
You must email me first if you want to use this tab on your site.

Re:STICKY: Site suggestions and questions

Posted by PistolPete - 2008/02/28 20:33

Ok some things that have been bothering me:

1. When creating a new thread, the topic icons that users select do not register and the thread automatically defaults to the generic topic icon. Even though a topic is definitely selected. I have to go in and edit tons of threads like this. I know, it's kinda nitpicky.

2. Sometimes when using quick reply in the thread I decide that I want to use a boardcode/smilie, so I click reply (in order to get the code), but when the page refreshes all of what I have typed in the quick reply box is now gone. Is there a way to have what you've already typed to transfer over to the reply box. Blamo's board does this and it's really nice.

3. Some of the things on the site are not Mac friendly. The only one I've really come across is the gallery section. I was trying to upload pics for ages, but it always stalled out or gave an error. I tried on my work computer and the files uploaded instantly...just some feedback really, no need to do anything.

Re:STICKY: Site suggestions and questions

Posted by Murder McMurderson - 2008/02/29 06:09

The first problem has been fixed. It seems that the icon would set to default if anything besides the first seven was selected.

For the other problems, I can only wait for component upgrades and hope they add the feature.

There hasn't been much big news lately. When August or September comes, I'm sure we'll be able to put it to good use. I don't know if we'll use the scrolling though. It was sort of glitchy and made the site slow.

I think I can collapse that banner space for now. I'll try it and see how it looks.

I've added a "Favorites" feature to the site so users can list their favorite cover songs, fan art, news items, etc.

Just click the yellow star symbol http://www.thepumpkins.net/templates/rt_mobius/images/style3/star.png on the right side of the page and it'll be added to your profile.

I also removed the bookmarking icons that were at the bottom of the pages, because I don't think anyone was using them, and they were kind of a waste of space.

Forum favorites have always existed. It works in a similar way, but instead the star appears next to the thread title that's been favored. For people who aren't logged in, it shows the star next to threads that have been favored many times. At least, I think that's how it works. This new feature is for the other parts of the site.

If you edit your profile again, you'll see a new "Message Ordering" option. I had it turned off because I thought it was the same for everyone.

Hello Murder, Thank you for directing me in the right spot.

I'm glad you can adjust the message order, it makes it much less confusing for me since that's what I'm used to. :)

For a suggestion, I would really like to be able to change the font size of the text in the forums.

Another suggestion would maybe to be able to choose a different color style layout for the forum background, I know on some forum sites you can do that. Sometimes I feel the white is a little hard on the eyes if looking at it for too long. That's just me though, and I understand that other people might not find white too harsh for them.

I might increase the font size a little. I'll have to see how it looks first. I'm not going to change it too much if I do.

I've made a small change to the font. It's not a huge difference, but it may be a bit easier to read.

Murder, what would you think about users having the ability to create polls within threads? Sometimes I wish this was available.

I want users to be able to create polls. I want users to be able to use every feature that's available. Unfortunately, our current forum software doesn't support polls yet. There is a hack being developed that I plan to implement that will enable polls. I'll try it out when the new version of the forum software is released, which will include merge and split options for the moderators, better search functions and some other nice updates. :)

Hey murder, is there any way to make the threads that appear on the front page, like, grouped together by thread and not just replies? I think it was like this before the big forum update or something. I guess it will show the most recent threads, not replies to threads? it would be easier to see more threads from the front page this way.

I'll see what I can do.

Okay, I changed it, but it still shows re: in front of the title.

Thanks. I like it much better. It threw me for a loop the first time I saw it.

Sorry guys, but I may need to change it back. The front page loads really slowly when it's like that.

Not that it concerns me, but I think you need to fix up the banner at the top of the page, Murder. The dates are quite hard to read, and combined with cycling through other banners would be quite irritating for someone trying to find a date.

Murder! I think we need a high-lightable "multi-quote" button like on Netphoria! It's a bit annoying opening lots of tabs and copy/pasting different quotes.

That isn't an available option with these forums currently.

Maybe you should get on Fireboard's case about it.

Nothing to stop anybody else getting onto Fireboards case really. I think Murder does quite enough already considering.

I would really enjoy having a Tour Forum. I think it would be good to have a thread for each upcoming show. That way people could post reviews, youtube uploads, set lists, comments, ect. And I feel this would be better served separate from the Smashing Pumpkins forum. Actually I would like it to take the place of the Tickets and Merchandise forum, I don't think it gets used much. Anyway just a suggestion.

Even though the Tickets and Merchandise forum isn't used very much, I would fear that a Tour forum would be used even less once the tours are over. The Tickets and Merchandise forum and the Sharing forum were created to take away topics from the main forum that didn't encourage discussion. I think touring is an important part of the band and of the music, which is why I wanted to keep the touring discussion in the main forum.
