Hi guys,

Some of you know me, some don't. Some probably care, and some don't. If you don't, then you can stop reading. If you do, please continue.

So most of you who I've spoken with probably know I've cut communication ties in the past few months.

The long version: <http://futureembrace.12.forumer.com/viewtopic.php?t=633>

The short version: My friend was hurt in a car accident, my girlfriend's father underwent open heart surgery, I've had exams, work, school etc. Lots of stress, lots of tears, and lots of sleepless nights. Now that everything is getting back on track, I'm ready to come back.

I apologize for those who have tried to contact me, I know many have. I'm okay, and I'm ready to rekindle old friendships online and start my forum back up again: <http://futureembrace.12.forumer.com/>

Thanks for reading.

ive been to many places around the world and only the odd few are up in the ranks with australia... regarding pollution, medical awareness, generous residential space ect.

you cant disregard australia just because there is a large amount of 'bogans'. i also dont appreciate the average beer drinking, dole bludging dero but that is only a narrow minded generalisation.

dougy, i think you should spend some time outside of tamworth, youre not getting enough fresh air haha.

i live up north where most of the bogans are, but i can see past them to what australia actually is. it isnt as bad as some ignorant people make it out to be.

Another "I'm Back" Thread

Posted by TheImplodingVoice - 2007/05/18 22:13

Hi guys.. again.

Since my last I'm Back thread seemed to have evaded my search, I shall start again. This isn't a pity thread by any means, so please don't flame because you think I'm putting up a sob story :)

So I pulled another disappearing act. There's just been odd things going on in my life where I just became busy - work, relationships with friends/ girlfriend/ family, school, personal demons/ battles with addictions with alcohol and gambling etc all kinda were relevant throughout the past few months. When I found the time to surf the net, I just never found the will to come back into the community because I felt there was so much I missed and it would take forever to catch up. With that being said, I took the lazy way out and stopped coming here, and to any communities in the TSP online world.

Now with the release of Zeitgeist coming up so soon, I just couldn't help myself. So, I'm back.

For those who knew me, I'm sorry I didn't keep in touch. I will do my best from this point forward to! I'm just an IM away.

For those who don't know me, I'm Chris, I'm 18 from Winnipeg, Canada. I don't bite (well, if you catch me on a good day). Let's chat!

And for those who are curious, TFE Forums (the boards I used to own) are probably done for good. Too bad for me putting such a name on a board, since it is so irrelevant at this time. Thanks for everyone who made that board what it was. I send out my greatest gratitude.

I'm also starting (another attempt at) an online forum. It's called TSP Online, <http://tsponline.30.forumer.com/>. I need a project to keep my preoccupied in this period of my life and this is it. It's still in early stages, so bear with it. Please stop by if you have the time, and help out! If you wish to help out in a greater means (moderating/ administering), please PM me!

Thanks for reading.
-Chris

Used to own? Anyway, good to hear from you again. I know you were doing it tough last time you disappeared, so things must be really serious. But I hope your taking a turn for the best. The new boards sound promising, it might be a good chance to clean the slate given some of the problems we had a TFE. I joined up as soon as I got the bulletin, I'm up for another mod job if you want. But yes, hope your doing good. Take as much time as you need!

I know, but I really dread going to other people's boards just to promote, which is why I try to contribute to discussion before I advertise.

I'm trying my best. Would appreciate it if anyone who sees that link to click it and join and post a bit. Without discussion, we have nothing! But I'm actually really surprised at how fast it's taken off in the span of less than 3 days.

LOL. Word of mouth advertising and instigating discussion is my biggest priority right now. No one likes to visit an empty board. Forums should be a hub of activity, and hopefully we can generate some discussion and increase traffic through word of mouth and pasting the link so many can see it.

aww gee, bel, im not that old and haggard. anyway whats up with u? ive read a few threads, your starting to sound well, bitter. i didnt think u did bitter?

Re: How much did u miss Ruby?

I do bitter with the best of them...especially when dealing with masses of thoughtless sheep and zombies who couldn't tell a good song from a fart in the wind down at old Jack Benson's farm house.

And I would never refer to you as old and haggard - you're my dream weaver! But if you ever leave me like that again...I'll be forced to start killing a member a day until you return.

Re: How much did u miss Ruby?

i thought i was a mindless zombie (its not always a bad thing people!) until i heard and saw tarantula. but then people may like it. i dunno i just have to give the album a good listen i think. i just havent had the time (which is so sad considering how excited i was and how much ive wanted to marry billy and have his babies over the last few years...i think james feels the same way :jamescry) anyhoo i loved TFE and thought IT was more pumpkinsy than what ive heard so far (which isnt much mind you)...anyway itll never beat machina or adore (I LOVE adore with all my heart and soul and breath and might and will) or even pisces iscariot which yes is just bsides..(go landslide...gotta love stevie, and i did like the dixie chicks version too by the way...) anyway im rambling. but seriously. personal taste is personal taste and dont let bels bitter ways get to you, he doent mean anything by it! hahaha (cough cough) :yay

So...

After several trips to LA and vowing to never return again and getting hit by one of the biggest storms that the Bay Area's ever seen and losing power for three days (or was it four?)I'm back.

Anything new? No?

Oh well.
