Way to take preemptive action on the Fillmore bootlegs, Murder!

I got tickets for tomorrow's show but my old dad decided he didn't want to drive for 5.5 hrs. to the show because of eyesight problems. I really want to go but not sure if I can make it safely by myself. :sigh This would be my first pumpkins show but now I'm left with a ticket waiting for me. :(

Anyway, I just hope other people here get to watch them live soon. Until the pumpkins have a show in L.A. I won't be able to see them live. :jamescry 1337, mark your calendar for Sept. 20. That's an open day between two SP shows in Arizona and San Diego. They've GOT to hit LA then. And I will most definitely see ya there!

So I went to the Wednesday night show (7/18/2007) when we got inside we were right up front. A band called The War Tapes opened for them.

Here's the youtube where I posted videos, I have tons of videos but it won't let me upload them. Anyone have any suggestions on how to post the rest on there? I don't get along with technology.

<http://youtube.com/user/PersianPumpkin>

The video quality isn't the greatest because I was being pushed a bit, and when they came out on stage and I saw Billy I started crying (I'm so pathetic). :sigh

Here are some pictures for your enjoyment. I have a million pictures, but I'll post a few up so you guys see!

At the end of the show Billy was walking on stage and we all went mad screaming at him, I blew him a kiss and he smiled at me, and I pretty much died right there.

More pictures and videos from the next shows! :D

Re: The Fillmore Bootlegs

So I went AGAIN to the Sunday July 22nd show. This was supposedly the first show before they added more dates, and apparently it sold out in about 30 seconds-that was the rumor of the night. A band called Test Your Reflexes opened. Beautiful show as usual! While we were getting in line we saw Jeff outside on his cell phone, as we passed the gate outside we heard them rehearsing so that was pretty cool. Jeff was looking at us as we passed by (it could be because we were looking at him :p)

Opened with United States, ended with Muzzle. No SIYL and still NO 1979. Billy joked with us, "What is that over there? A disgruntal fan? Well that's not new."

They played Zeitgeist and :jimmy played guitar with :billy!!

Billy incorporated Jeff more on stage and Jeff, they chatted about the Grateful Dead and joked with us. :D

Until next show!

WOW. They have to take that into the studio!! Sounds like something right out of Pistachio Medley. :) But the part where he sings... it sounds like old Pumpkins... like, 1990 old. :D

yeah that is the kind of music I wanted them to make again, that SD/MCIS era metal.

I just got home from another Smashing Pumpkins show at The Fillmore! They allowed cameras, but if you took pictures they wouldn't allow you to use flash because...

....they were filming the concert for the DVD tonight! Cameras EVERYWHERE, in the line, interviewing people, in the concert, they even interviewed the people with signs that said, "NEED TICKET, WILL DO ANYTHING"

We were right in the front row, so we saw all the filming and they filmed all of us singing along, it was amazing.

More details after I sleep. :p

Awesome. I have front row tickets for their show in Minnesota!! When do you think they'll release the tour dvd? I hope they do a better job with releasing it than they did with the final metro show...

Well they said that this one was specific for the San Francisco shows, does anyone know if they did this for The Orange Peel as well? When they said the band was releasing a DVD everyone in the line went, "FINAL METRO!" "Yeah we'll never see this DVD..."

Billy wanted Jeff to smash his guitar but Jeff just smiled and shook his head. Also, we all sang (including Billy) Happy Birthday to a girl named Vanessa-SO LUCKY.

That's awesome. It would have been better if they played Porcelina but i'm not complaining.

Did they play the whole song?

no, he played it in the same key as To Sheila (C#) and went into it after the first chorus

Yay! Congrats! Okay Billy sang By Starlight on another night and he messed up the lyrics and he goes "Oops" and you can hear the crowd singing the correct ones. He laughed at us and tried again where he messed up.

Here are my photos from the last night:

And here are my videos:

In My Body:

Neverlost:

Zeitgeist:

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=S9tyb4ikLH8>

Sorry about the sound quality, the speakers sort of overpowered my camera's mike.

Also Jimmy played acoustic guitar on Zeitgeist with Billy, but I couldn't get a good shot of him from where I was, and I didn't want to block the view of people behind me by holding my camera up in the air for the whole song (since a guy behind me already scolded me for doing it earlier), so the video is just Billy.

What night was this? The 31st? Or was this another date not in San Francisco? Because one of the many nights that I went Jimmy played guitar with Billy and they sang Zeitgeist. I posted a picture a few pages back. I wanted to get video but my battery died in my camera (stupid stupid technology!).
There was also this guy outside wearing silver pants, a zero shirt, silver gloves and a tie around his neck...another guy that walked around with a sign that said "My 10th show-I need a life." (much love to him for getting tickets to all of them).

Wow great pictures! How long did you wait in line for?

Re: The Fillmore Bootlegs

Posted by melabonbon - 2007/08/06 18:36

Thank you! :D
I got in line around 7pm. After security checked us around 8pm, they split us up by last name, and the P to Z line was super short (my last name starts with W) so when I got inside I was like 4 rows of people from the stage, between Billy and Ginger. (Jeff's side was more crowded). I couldn't believe it. I thought I'd be so far back. That's even after making a pit stop. Then after the opening band, The 88 (who I really enjoyed), this guy ahead of me saw me taking pictures of the Pumpkins setup and told me I could stand in front of him so I could get better pictures (I'm short and he was tall).

Re: The Fillmore Bootlegs

Posted by PersianBellyDancer - 2007/08/06 22:06

Wow you were close for not waiting all that much! I was there for a good seven hours every night I went. We were on Jeff's side for two nights, one night near Ginger and one night we were dead in front of Billy. I'm short as well, but I got there so early...I feel really pathetic now that I stayed in line for so long.

Re: The Fillmore Bootlegs

Posted by melabonbon - 2007/08/07 05:06

Don't feel like that! I just got really really lucky. This was a weird trip for me; a lot of things just fell into place perfectly. If I had had more time, I would've waited in line for hours as well. But it was my first time in SF and I only had a few days there, so after much anxious deliberation I decided I'd do sightseeing that afternoon instead of standing in line.

He didn't? :confused Then yeah, he must've been going to the wrong places. Because I loved it there. I actually got teary eyed when the BART train showed up to take me back to the airport to come back to Chicago. I thought it was gorgeous, and the vast majority of people I ran into were incredibly sweet and considerate and kind. He should've hung around for a few more days and I could've taken him to the places I went, because I had a great time. Though he's probably already seen all the places I visited.

Yay! You took Bart! Your an officially a member of the Bay Area!
Billy needs to hang out with us, we'd show him the REAL San Francisco!

Also as a torrent on Zomb:

And a torrent of the 7/30 show on Zomb:

<http://zombtracker.the-zomb.com/details.php?id=17661>

Unfortunately I am currently having some problem getting torrents so right now I'm unable to download the shows and put them up as mp3s or anything to share.
