

---

Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Ruby - 2007/10/30 04:45

---

hate to be a negative creep but what movies have u seen of late that have made your want to scream or physically hurt some part of yourself or others?

mind you i couldnt manage to watch the whole movie.

for today mine are...
you me and dupree
lord of war (if i hear nicholas cages voice ever again ill scream)

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by RJK - 2007/10/30 05:51

---

Has anybody ever seen this piece of crap movie called "Surfer Nazis Must Die"? It's the worst pile of steaming turd that I have ever, EVER seen.

The version I saw was part of this B-grade movie series. Most of these B-grades are quite watchable and hilarious, but this was, indescribable.

I agree Ruby, Nicholas Cage isn't an actor.

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by Believe - 2007/10/30 13:06

---

Nicholas Cage isn't an actor? I agree he's lost some magic in his years but has anyone seen Raising Arizona, Leaving Las Vegas, or The Weather Man?

aNYHOW:

I went to see the new Transformers Movie like an idiot (only because it was free) and needless to say in just under an hour and a half they managed to transform me: from optimistic fan to a disappointed man.

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by Believe - 2007/10/30 13:08

---

Nicholas Cage isn't an actor? I agree he's lost some magic in his years but has anyone seen Raising Arizona, Leaving Las Vegas, or The Weather Man?

aNYHOW:

I went to see the new Transformers Movie like an idiot (only because it was free) and needless to say in just under an hour and a half they managed to transform me: from optimistic fan to a disappointed man.

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by PumpkinPieces - 2007/10/30 21:13

---

Dumb and DumberER- does the original no justice what so ever.

Pulp Fiction- i can appreciate some of it, but a lot of it is boring to me.

---

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by disarm - 2007/10/30 22:10

---

Live Free or Die Hard.

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by Ruby - 2007/10/30 23:50

---

PumpkinPieces wrote:

Dumb and DumberER- does the original no justice what so ever.

Pulp Fiction- i can appreciate some of it, but a lot of it is boring to me.

u can appreciate some of it??? what does that mean??? im still shaking my head. you didnt follow it if u found it boring!
lol alot of movies generally have adult ratings for more than child protection against obscenity i guess!

and BELIEVE...even tho transformers was corny AS in regards to plot, dialouge etc, you have to admit it was still pretty cool to watch. i actually enjoyed it alot.hahahaha

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by PumpkinPieces - 2007/11/01 01:38

---

i guess I should've explained myself more, I appreciate the storyline, but scenes such as the ass raping make me cringe. I like the storyline, but the grotesqueness distracts me from it and it becomes boring to me.

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by Ruby - 2007/11/01 02:58

---

its supposed to make u cringe lol. u think tarantinos success comes from everybody having a thing for gay porn and gimps?? hahaha. your supposed to go "oh god thats horrible" lol but at the same time its funny and ironic. murder isnt supposed to be funny, but i crack up whenever i hear travolta say.. "i think i just shot marvin in the face"

and hes showing a MAN getting raped..all the better considering its usually something in an 18+ that happens to women.

i do love this film. its sick, and funny yet theres depth lol and somehow i find resovior dogs and pulp fiction to be more believeable than so many other films of this sort, as theres a quirkyess to all of the characters. which isnt just tarantino but the fucking awesome actors.

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by Believe - 2007/11/01 13:26

---

Above is a lovely review from the lovely Ruby but of course it loses all it's effectiveness once you factor in the issue of YOU LIKING THE TRANSFORMERS!!!!!! How the fuck can u praise Pulp Fiction, Reservoir Dogs and The Transformers(???) in the same thread? You've comitted blasphme on some level I'm sure - And you've totally just lost about 30 cool points.

---

(On a side note: My uncle was in Reservoir Dogs...his name is Randy Brooks and he plays the detective that trains Roth's character. He is most famous for his role on the soap opera The Young and the Restless.)

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by Starla Bing - 2007/11/01 19:58

---

who was your uncle on Young and the Restless? Ive been watching that show since I was born. yes I'm lame.

As for movies I too found Transformers kind of stupid. The cartoon movie was way better especially because Robert Stack was one of the voices I think it was decepticon or something.

I recently watched 28 weeks later and felt like gauging my eyes out since it was so incredibly dumb. I dont suggest it. I dont really watch too many movies because I'm hard to please.

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by doomsdayclock - 2007/11/02 00:57

---

i'm going to go with snakes on a plane. it's absolutely terrible . it's kinda funny that samuel jackson seems to be in every movie nowadays, and they all suck

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by HeavyMetalMachine - 2007/11/02 03:24

---

Harry Potter.
Sorry but I can't stand Harry Potter.

And any talking animal movie.

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Rivers Cuomo - 2007/11/03 01:27

---

starship troopers was probably the second dumbest movie I've ever been unfortunate enough to see.

the first being balls of fury.

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by PumpkinPieces - 2007/11/03 04:31

---

Ruby wrote:

its supposed to make u cringe lol. u think tarantinos success comes from everybody having a thing for gay porn and gimps?? hahaha. your supposed to go "oh god thats horrible" lol but at the same time its funny and ironic. murder isnt supposed to be funny, but i crack up whenever i hear travolta say.. "i think i just shot marvin in the face"

Listen I never said it wasn't supposed to make you cringe, gosh dang, I don't like the movie that much alright. The only part I hysterically laugh at is Travolta accidentally shooting the dude in the car. I understand the concept of the movie, its not like I watch it all the time and complain. It was the first time I saw it and I didn't like the movie.

And stop taking words out of my mouth, I never said how tarantino gets his success, I simply stated I don;t like Pulp fiction because I get bored, and I explained why I get bored, and thats that.

---

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Trillian - 2007/11/05 20:35

---

Eye-gouging films:

The worst has to be Gus Van Sant's "Last Days." I totally expected a subtle recreation of Kurt Cobain's last days and all I got was crap. I left the theater a grueling 30 minutes in. Not even Kim Gordon could save it.

Also: Pinata Survivor Island (really horrible cable TV horror flick where an ancient Mayan statue terrorizes debaucherous college students.)

Spiderman 2 was pretty unbearable too.

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Ruby - 2007/11/06 00:21

---

OMFG...last days...i was so dissapointed! i still got a little sad at the end, but what the fuck? talk about going no where...and with a pretty good story line to help you along you think that as Gus Van Sant, youd come up with something a little more feesable.

and BEL, yes transformers was corney but the robots are FUCKING COOL i dont care what u say!!! if u went to the movies and werent impressed with some of the shit that those robots do (yes all fucking awsome graphics...i usually hate big computerised shit) well i just dont have words! ITS COOL TO WATCH...PERIOD!!

and yeah cant stand harry potter movies...

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Believe - 2007/11/06 13:58

---

Fuck - Has anyone seen a movie called ELEPHANT by Gus Van WHACK! It's a slow ride to nowheresville.

On the other hand I liked 28 weeks later as well as the original 28 days later and I stand by those flicks. I can see why a female wouldnt like it though - just from the first 5 minutes...(But how true a depiction of human behavior)

Snakes on a plane was worth watching just to see Samuel Jackson's charcater scream "I'm tired of these MOTHERFUCKIN' SNAKES on this MOTHERFUCKIN' PLANE!!!" Classic!!!!

Oh, Starla (Good to see U:) It was a while back but my uncle played Nathan Hastings on Y&R from 1992-95, He was also on Another World as Marshall Lincoln Kramer from 1994-95, and on All My Children as Hayes Grady in 1996.

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by doomsdayclock - 2007/11/06 16:04

---

28 days later had good plot. 28 weeks later didn't have as good of plot but there was more action (better in my book) and that is somewhat true believe, i did like hearing mr. jackson say his line in snakes on a plane. but the movie sucked. period.

=====

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Believe - 2007/11/06 16:12

---

Agreed - the other Hour and twenty five minutes I could have spent sun tanning...and I'm black.

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Rivers Cuomo - 2007/11/06 17:22

---

hahahahaha

funny guy

i dont like will ferrel movies anymore

blades of glory can suck it

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by doomsdayclock - 2007/11/07 00:16

---

i totally agree. will ferrel's movies are becoming very repetitive with him acting dumb for laughs. i think old school was the last movie i liked with him in it. anchorman was okay.

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by yteah - 2007/11/07 03:18

---

i absolutely loved when samuel l jackson said his famous line (like he pulls out his gun for no reason and gives a squinty eye to nothing, it was the funniest thing ever) and i really like Stranger Than Fiction, but of course thats not really a will ferrel movie, but meh

i really hated smokin' ace's, it was alright to watch, but the ending was so stupid and a waste of time

pan's labyrinth sucked too, i was all jazzed up for a fantasy adventure, not a war story

i hate the lord or the rings movies too

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Rivers Cuomo - 2007/11/07 03:37

---

whaaat no lotr?

straight to hell

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by HeavyMetalMachine - 2007/11/07 03:46

---

---

Anti-Catholic movies like The Golden Compass (which is coming out in December or something), where they try to make it seem like it's a family movie, so a whole bunch of little kids can come see that Catholics are evil and have an enchanting experience at the same time.

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Believe - 2007/11/07 13:44

---

I'm interested in this movie now - why is it anti catholic?

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by Homicidal_Illama - 2007/11/07 21:00

---

yteah wrote:

pan's labyrinth sucked too, i was all jazzed up for a fantasy adventure, not a war story

You didn't like Pan's Labyrinth just because of its marketing campaign? Oh dear... What were you expecting? The Wizard of Oz?
Its a stunning film!

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by HeavyMetalMachine - 2007/11/07 21:50

---

Believe wrote:

I'm interested in this movie now - why is it anti catholic?

I'm not sure. According to an e-mail I got, it's based off the novels of some British atheist, who's trying to convert kids to atheism. The main villains in the series of books are the Magisterium, Cardinals, and the Pope. And the heroine is a girl who sets out to kill God.

But what they did is they took out all the anti-Catholic/Christian themes from the movie to make it more innocent and appealing to kids. They did this so they would read the books (which include harsh anti-catholic/christian themes) and most likely by merchandise.

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by HeavyMetalMachine - 2007/11/07 21:50

---

Believe wrote:

I'm interested in this movie now - why is it anti catholic?

I'm not sure. According to an e-mail I got, it's based off the novels of some British atheist, who's trying to convert kids to atheism. The main villains in the series of books are the Magisterium, Cardinals, and the Pope. And the heroine is a girl who sets out to kill God.

But what they did is they took out all the anti-Catholic/Christian themes from the movie to make it more innocent and appealing to kids. They did this so they would read the books (which include harsh anti-catholic/christian themes) and most likely by merchandise.

=====

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Rivers Cuomo - 2007/11/08 03:03

---

ehhh I dunno, I've heard a lot of shens about the whole "athiest compass" thing

I'll read it and see for myself!

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by yteah - 2007/11/08 03:35

---

that sounds like a sweet ass movie, not that im for religion bashing... it just sounds very unique and interesting. i cant wait.

Homicidal_llama wrote:

yteah wrote:

pan's labyrinth sucked too, i was all jazzed up for a fantasy adventure, not a war story

You didn't like Pan's Labyrinth just because of its marketing campaign? Oh dear... What were you expecting? The Wizard of Oz?

Its a stunning film!

i was expecting a damn labyrinth, pan's labyrinth that is. its not that stunning. and i dont like movies that have unhappy or unmeaningful endings. i actually liked arthur and the invisibles way more than pan's labyrinth. lol

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by Ruby - 2007/11/08 07:35

---

i love wil ferral. stranger than fiction was a bit of a letdown. blades wasnt his best but he's still great..."i see you still look like a 15 year old girl but not hot" hahahaha CMON!!! i almost sprayed pepsi out my nose i was laughing so hard ...esp at the bit when he pukes in his wizard costume. it was pretty embarassing cos i saw it on my own....and u gotta love jon heder. i was watching napoleon dynamite today...its def one of my favourites.

i wasnt impressed with pans labyrinth. seemed just like a whole lotta potential. for a movie that seems like its going to be fairly sophisticated, it had too many obvious plot turns and blunders that the characters had to make to get it where it had to go. and for someone who quite likes mindless violence in films it was a bit too graphic at random intervals. the bottle in the face? only have to see it once or twice thanks...this is coming from someone who has a giggle at michael madsen cutting a guys ear off while dancing to jerry rafferty...

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by HeavyMetalMachine - 2007/11/08 21:11

---

that sounds like a sweet ass movie, not that im for religion bashing... it just sounds very unique and interesting. i cant wait.

Really?

To me it just seems like another lame unoriginal "magical" book series/movie like Harry Potter, A Series of Unfortunate Events, and The Chronicles of Narnia.

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

---

Posted by Rivers Cuomo - 2007/11/09 14:13

---

if those are unoriginal, how the hell do you make an original story

the majority of the world seems to disagree with you on harry potter;)

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Believe - 2007/11/09 14:36

---

Green Street Hooligans Sucked Ass!

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by doomsdayclock - 2007/11/09 14:45

---

WHAT!!! green street hooligans is bad ass... the ring 2 is terrible. i saw the first one and it was thrilling. second one, i left the theater once the deer attacked the car.

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Believe - 2007/11/09 15:30

---

Green Street Hooligans was ok up until the end - When they played that cheesy fuckin love song during a fight scene???

*Movie Ruined* (Who believes Frodo Baggins as a toguh guy anyway)

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by HeavyMetalMachine - 2007/11/09 23:59

---

the majority of the world seems to disagree with you on harry potter

I don't care if everyone else disagrees with me.
Something can be unoriginal and still do well.
Take talking animal movies for example.
How many of those have you seen?
Unoriginal right?
And yet there are tons made every year and people still go see them.

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Ruby - 2007/11/10 02:33

---

i agree with HMM. in my experience the majority of the world are idiots. harry potter movies...meh

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by yteah - 2007/11/10 04:48

---

---

but a movie where religious leaders are the villains, or did you mean that whole part is cut out?

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Rivers Cuomo - 2007/11/10 05:47

---

well, you guys can have whatever opinions you want but I encourage you to go write an original seven book fantasy series:roll

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by HeavyMetalMachine - 2007/11/10 21:39

---

but a movie where religious leaders are the villains, or did you mean that whole part is cut out?

I'm not sure what parts are cut out because I've never read the books.

However, yes, I did read somewhere that in the movie the Pope along with other religious leaders are the main villains

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by Homicidal_Illama - 2007/11/11 13:59

---

yteah wrote:

that sounds like a sweet ass movie, not that im for religion bashing... it just sounds very unique and interesting. i cant wait.

Homicidal_Illama wrote:

yteah wrote:

pan's labyrinth sucked too, i was all jazzed up for a fantasy adventure, not a war story

You didn't like Pan's Labyrinth just because of its marketing campaign? Oh dear... What were you expecting? The Wizard of Oz?

Its a stunning film!

i was expecting a damn labyrinth, pan's labyrinth that is. its not that stunning. and i dont like movies that have unhappy or unmeaningful endings. i actually liked arthur and the invisibles way more than pan's labyrinth. lol

How can you say that Pan's Labyrinth is 'unmeaningful'?! The entire film is steeped with metaphors, revolving around catholicism (ala the scene with the eyeless demon & the forbidden fruit), facism & the power of the imagination. Its not your a-typical fanasy film, its to do with hidden battles away from the ones which are progressing throughout the film. The fact that none of Ofelia's fantasies effect what is going on in the real world reflect that they arn't even real.

So now your trying to tell me Arthur & the Invisibles is more meaningful than Pan's Labyrinth? Clearly a work of cinematic genius blows over you for a kid's film. I'm guessing your catalogue of favourite movies are all Hollywood productions then eh? Deary me...

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by yteah - 2007/11/12 22:54

---

well uh, pan's labyrinth just sucked, it could be nice looking and meaningful, but i just thought it was a random waste of time story, like catcher in the rye, lol

---

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by Homicidal_Illama - 2007/11/13 12:17

---

yteah wrote:

well uh, pan's labyrinth just sucked, it could be nice looking and meaningful, but i just thought it was a random waste of time story, like catcher in the rye, lol

But now your just not making sense, a story thats meaningful but is a waste of time?! guuuuuh :confused . You could say that about every story then!!! Sorry, I'm being rather elitist, if you didn't like it, well you didn't like it, me ranting ain't gonna change your opinion. Then again I am a Film Studies student, can ya tell :P ??

Anyways, I've just sat here ranting & haven't told the films I despise:

All of the American Pie's can go burn in hell, they are all immature piles of garbage.

Crash (as in the original one, were people get turned on by car crashed), yeah it was so unbelievably shite. May as well have just been a porn movie except you can't see anything, so laaame.

28 Weeks later, Days later was good but it never asked for a sequel & never one as sequelly as this one.

On the the subject of sequels The Matrix sequels made me wanna gouge my eyes out. Now those were pointless movies. Fair enough the original was actually trying to make a vague point but its as if they just had money on the mind & created a really bad script over powered by pointlessly repetitive action sequences. That said, the Animatrix was very good.

The Chronicles of Narnia featured some of the most terrible child actors ever, not to mention a horrificly badly directed movie.

Lord of the Rings, the stories are nice & everything but the films are terribly pretentious piles of poopy. Not to mention the last one had everyone wanting to leave the cinema towards the end it was so dull...

Mehh, theres loads more I can think of but those are the ones that pee me off the most.

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Rivers Cuomo - 2007/11/13 14:49

---

I found catcher in the rye very entertaining are you reading it for high school or something

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by HeavyMetalMachine - 2007/11/13 17:57

---

The Chronicles of Narnia featured some of the most terrible child actors ever, not to mention a horrificly badly directed movie.

Exactly. I can't stand that movie.

I'm sick of movies with fantasy plots where little kids with english accents, freckles, and nicely parted haircuts, become heroes and fight off random "beasts" and somehow save the day.

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by yteah - 2007/11/14 20:34

---

well homicidal i guess you would have to be a film studies student to enjoy that movie lol :p

---

i read catcher in the rye way back in the day cause i heard about it so much, i liked it, but felt let down at the end, teen angst.. nah by ned vizzini is better lol theres a part where he uses xyu as background music in one of his movies :yay

oh man, i really hated i now pronounce you chuck and larry i thought it was gonna be somewhat funny, and it was for like the first ten minutes, and then it just gets spooky, but i guess you get to see jessica beil in her underwear... and now i realize all adam sandler movies have almost the same progression

=====

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Zer0 - 2007/11/17 16:57

---

A horrible movie I've seen recently - The Marine.

It's so woeful... John Cena is a horrible actor... It still hurts me knowing I'll never get the 90 minutes I wasted on that movie back.

=====

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Homicidal_llama - 2007/11/19 08:06

---

Zer0 wrote:

A horrible movie I've seen recently - The Marine.

It's so woeful... John Cena is a horrible actor... It still hurts me knowing I'll never get the 90 minutes I wasted on that movie back.

This film begs the question - why do wrestlers become actors??

See this is why I never watch action films cus I always know they will be samey & poop.

=====

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Zer0 - 2007/11/19 08:13

---

To be honest, I actually don't mind The Rock even though his movies are usually so cliché and repetitive. But then I waste time watching another midday movie starring Hulk Hogan and I die a littler inside.

=====

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Homicidal_llama - 2007/11/19 08:17

---

Zer0 wrote:

To be honest, I actually don't mind The Rock even though his movies are usually so cliché and repetitive. But then I waste time watching another midday movie starring Hulk Hogan and I die a littler inside.

The Rock's best role was in The Mummy Returns when he doesn't even talk :P .

=====

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by Believe - 2007/11/19 12:19

---

Homicidal_llama wrote:

yteah wrote:

well uh, pan's labyrinth just sucked, it could be nice looking and meaningful, but i just thought it was a random waste of time story, like catcher in the rye, lol

---

But now your just not making sense, a story thats meaningful but is a waste of time?! guuuuuh :confused . You could say that about every story then!!! Sorry, I'm being rather elitist, if you didn't like it, well you didn't like it, me ranting ain't gonna change your opinion. Then again I am a Film Studies student, can ya tell :P ??

Anyways, I've just sat here ranting & haven't told the films I despise:

All of the American Pie's can go burn in hell, they are all immature piles of garbage.

Crash (as in the original one, were people get turned on by car crashed), yeah it was so unbelievably shite. May as well have just been a porn movie except you can't see anything, so laaame.

28 Weeks later, Days later was good but it never asked for a sequel & never one as sequelly as this one.

On the the subject of sequels The Matrix sequels made me wanna gouge my eyes out. Now those were pointless movies. Fair enough the original was actually trying to make a vague point but its as if they just had money on the mind & created a really bad script over powered by pointlessly repetitive action sequences. That said, the Animatrix was very good.

The Chronicles of Narnia featured some of the most terrible child actors ever, not to mention a horrificly badly directed movie.

Lord of the Rings, the stories are nice & everything but the films are terribly pretentious piles of poopy. Not to mention the last one had everyone wanting to leave the cinema towards the end it was so dull...

Mehh, theres loads more I can think of but those are the ones that pee me off the most.

28 Weeks Later rocks but I can see why so many females would have a problem with it. Look - all the lady had to do was listen to her husband in the first place!

The Matrix sequels sucked because the guys credited with writing the first script didnt actually didn't come up with the story at all. The story for the first matrix movie was written by a woman named Sophia Stewart and the Wachowski brothers basicly stole her idea, but when it came time for the sequels they didnt know where to take the movie. This is also the reason that people find the ending so confusing. The woman who wrote the original story entitle "The Third Eye" later sued.

Here's an article about her...

<http://media.www.slccglobelink.com/media/storage/paper442/news/2004/10/28/Entertainment/mother.Of.The.Matrix.Victorious-785067.shtml>

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by yteah - 2007/11/20 02:41

---

lol holy smokes thats interesting!!! thanks for sharing :)

*believe gets a million cool points*

poolhall junkies was a cheap ass movie, not that i thought it was gonna be good, but the main actor sucked hardcore balls i couldnt believe it, lol

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by Homicidal_Illama - 2007/11/20 12:26

---

Believe wrote:

28 Weeks Later rocks but I can see why so many females would have a problem with it.

Am not a female you fooligan.

I hated 28 Weeks later because it was basically just like the orginal but with no progression whatsoever. The directing was clearly trying to imitate Danny Boyle's & the plot was incredibly inane. Also, the ending completely ruined it for me, were you see the people infected with RAGE running around the Eiffel Tower, its as if they are trying to say: "Hey fuck you guys, we're making a 28 Months Later whether this is successful or not, & its gonna be in France ;)." Its just typical sequel material just tacked onto the end of the other one. All in all, a pointlessly forgettable film.

---

Then again there is one amusing part - when the helicopter flies down & its blades chop the RAGE victims up, but that was only cus it was funny :P .

That Matrix thing is interesting. I really want to read Sophia Stewart's script to see how similar it is because she also claims that the creators of Terminator stole her idea as well. I imagine the Third Eye is about robots taking over the world...

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by Homicidal_Illama - 2007/11/20 12:26

---

Believe wrote:

28 Weeks Later rocks but I can see why so many females would have a problem with it.

Am not a female you fooligan.

I hated 28 Weeks later because it was basically just like the original but with no progression whatsoever. The directing was clearly trying to imitate Danny Boyle's & the plot was incredibly inane. Also, the ending completely ruined it for me, were you see the people infected with RAGE running around the Eiffel Tower, its as if they are trying to say: "Hey fuck you guys, we're making a 28 Months Later whether this is successful or not, & its gonna be in France ;) ." Its just typical sequel material just tacked onto the end of the other one. All in all, a pointlessly forgettable film.

Then again there is one amusing part - when the helicopter flies down & its blades chop the RAGE victims up, but that was only cus it was funny :P .

That Matrix thing is interesting. I really want to read Sophia Stewart's script to see how similar it is because she also claims that the creators of Terminator stole her idea as well. I imagine the Third Eye is about robots taking over the world...

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by Trillian - 2007/11/21 20:23

---

*protects her precious LOTR and Narnia films from harm* Sorry, I absolutely adored these projects. And Pan's Labyrinth too (although, Yteah, you totally amused me with the "I WAS EXPECTING A LABYRINTH" comment, hehe.)

As for the "encouraging of anti-Catholic thought" that His Dark Materials is accused of doing, how about this? Why don't parents let kids read "The Golden Compass" and then read something overtly Christian like "The Last Battle" in the Narnia series. Then they can decide for themselves if either are too preachy. Or maybe they'll be kids and take them both for the excellent literature and imagination they possess.

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by yteah - 2007/11/21 22:11

---

every shake a spear movie sucked

---

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by HeavyMetalMachine - 2007/11/22 19:23

---

As for the "encouraging of anti-Catholic thought" that His Dark Materials is accused of doing, how about this? Why don't parents let kids read "The Golden Compass" and then read something overtly Christian like "The Last Battle" in the Narnia series. Then they can decide for themselves if either are too preachy. Or maybe they'll be kids and take them both for the excellent literature and imagination they possess.

---

Well, they would probably pick up on the "preachyness" of both of those movies whether they realize it or not

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes out

Posted by dougydarkangel - 2007/11/23 05:45

---

I personally thought that 28 Weeks later was fantastic, although i am a tad biased, there is nothing i like better than an apocalyptic movie, especialy one involving zombies, and movies featuring these themes rarely recieve a large enough budget to be done well, and i think both 28 days and weeks are fantastic, the sence of hopelessness that continues throughout the whole story is so engrosing, and the ending of 28 weeks is a testament to that, its like it shows you them flying away on the helecopeter and you think: yay there is hope. Then any of that hope is crushed when you see the zombies running around the iffel tower, its fantastic.

Heres for hoping the World War Z movie gets finnished soon.

Oh, by the way, has anyone seen the Ian Curtis film Control? it wasnt released in my area and im waiting for the dvd release.

=====

Re:Movies that make you want to scratch your eyes

Posted by Ruby - 2007/11/28 06:39

---

yteah wrote:
every shake a spear movie sucked

i used to love baz lurmans 'romeo and juliet' and even tho its dated for me already what with claire danes and leo being involved i still think it was well done. the soundtrack was great.

i also love kenneth branaghs Hamlet (its my fave shakespeare play too) and even tho "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern are Dead" is a Tom Stoppard play based within and around Hamlet, the movie version of Stoppards play is a great adaptation of something that is essentially, originally derived from the shakespeare play. its very funny and stars Gary Oldman and Tim Roth, two of my favourite actors.

were very lucky in australia we have a great shakespeare company called the Bell Shakespeare company that always does brilliant adaptations, and travel the country as well as play the syd opera house. i got to see a few in school.

=====