
Song Collabs

Posted by Rivers Cuomo - 2007/11/14 02:07

Hey guys, wanted to try covering a song, but couldn't/didn't want to try covering each part yourself?

Post an "ad" here if you want to collaborate on something.

woa, what do you mean??? Like recording different clips and sending the file to each other and we add on to make a song?

Am I hearing this right?

That would be insane.

Re:Song Collabs

Posted by PistolPete - 2007/11/14 22:49

Is it possible to do this? What file format should we use?

Re:Song Collabs

Posted by HeavyMetalMachine - 2007/11/14 23:03

This is awesome.

We should probably use WAV.

Actually, I dont think it matters as long as we can send and download each file.

I have a mixing program, I know someother people here do too...if I can get all the clips, I can put them together.

If anybody has a song they want to do, please say so..

then if anyody wants to play a part for it, say so

Re:Song Collabs

Posted by HeavyMetalMachine - 2007/11/15 00:31

Well, I dont know if we should make seperate clipp, cause each person might be using a different tempo or something so that could really screw a song up. I think we just keep adding to the same same sound file.

)Yeah. Someone should pick a song. There's to many I want to do that it's hard to pick.)

Anyway, we should organize this. Maybe we should make a list of people who want to join in on the song. The person on the top starts off the song how he or she wants. When that person is done, they pass it to the next person on the list. Once we get to the end of the list it goes back to the first person. We do this until we decide the song is finished.

Just an idea. Do people agree? I can't think of a better way of doing it.

Also, this is just me, but I dont think we should have singing. That could ruin a song if someone isn't carefull. Maybe someone can play the lyric melody on the guitar or another instrument.

Any thoughts?

Good point I was worried about people's tempo.

I've been messing around with Crush, LMGTWTY, Mayo and Ruby lately. I'd also love to do Porcelina, Drown and Starla, but maybe we should start off simple.

Yeah, I've been messing around with those songs too.

But I agree, we should start off with a simple one to see how it goes.

Oh and I would absolutly love Mayonaise 'cause I can play the whole acousic part of the song really well. So if we did Mayonaise I could contribute with that.

Re:Song Collabs

Anyone play bass...drums??

=====

Re:Song Collabs

Posted by Rivers Cuomo - 2007/11/15 01:03

I can manage both, but I'm sure we could find somebody better. If not, I can give it a try.

So looks like Mayonaise is the first contender. Whoever wants to contribute, say so. If we have too many guitarists, we can make more than one version. Billy is a master of layering, but we probably aren't. Anyways, about tempo, if you want we can do it that way, or you could just play along with the actual song. Other wise I'd suggest a click track for whoever starts.

I'm in the middle of laying down a hasty version of Mayo. I've already messed up a few times, but I just wanted to see if this whole thing is possible. I'll post it in a few minutes...

Shotty version of the Mayo intro...one of my guitars is out of tune, sorry.

Starla intro

I do better work, these were spur of the moment.

Re:Song Collabs

there you go

the idea would be not to record all the parts yourself obviously like

if you want to do the background intro, i can do the lead intro, or vice versa (though I'm pretty bad at that background part)

as for vocals, I dont mind us putting vocals on, but I think we should vote on who's gets added

we want it to sound good, but we should put vocals in

Re:Song Collabs

Posted by PistolPete - 2007/11/15 01:49

Ok. Here is Guitar 2 (Eb Bb Bb Gb Bb D) on the intro to Mayonaise, I cut off at the rhythm.
<http://www.sendspace.com/file/xmnae5>

Again with no echo, but I thought the echo sounded kinda cool.
<http://www.sendspace.com/file/0d59ol>

If this is acceptable enough, let this be the start :)

Re:Song Collabs

Posted by Rivers Cuomo - 2007/11/15 02:32

sounds good

I can record the lead sometime here, have some homework to do first though..

do you still have the strumming part that comes before the distortion? If I could get that too, it'd be great :D

who wants to work on the verse parts?

we need at least one guitar, bass, and drums, and vocals if anyone is up to trying it

Re:Song Collabs

Posted by PistolPete - 2007/11/15 02:53

Strumming comes in at around 25 seconds. It should line up with the intro well.
<http://www.sendspace.com/file/6a323b>

My rhythm is off sometimes...HeavyMetalMachine could probably do this part better.

Re:Song Collabs

Posted by HeavyMetalMachine - 2007/11/15 03:14

Can I start off with the acoustic part?

I'm pretty good at that part

I'll play with a click track and then whoever is a drummer could play with the acoustic.

Re:Song Collabs

Your's sounds good PistolPete.
I'll try to put mine up too, and we can decide which one we want to use.

Re:Song Collabs

Arrgghh!!! My G string broke on my acoustic and thats the most important string to play mayonaise!!!

Sorry about that guys. I'm going to get new strings tommorow (the 15th) so I'll probably have my part posted sometime tommorow night.

Sorry about the wait.
I promise you wont regret it.

Sorry, I already did the acoustic part.

Here it is, I did the intro, the whole acoustic part, and then the outro.
(We can decide between pistolpete's and mine)

I made about 2 slight mistakes but they shouldn't be to noticable with the distortion. Also, my microphone is kindof cruddy so the acoustic isnt as crisp as it could be. But once again, I dont think it'll be to noticable with the distortion.

I posted an mp3 link instead. It's available in one of my newer posts.

oh my bad, that's because I made it a WAV file.

You can just delete it.

I'll post the link for an mp3 file.

Re:Song Collabs

Posted by HeavyMetalMachine - 2007/11/16 21:35

Here is the mp3.
Download this instead of my last one.
It's the exact same thing just a more appropriat file type(only 5.5 mb too).

<http://www.sendspace.com/file/la0zyp>

(by the way I recorded this over the original Mayonaise so everything's dead on. If something sounds weird the distortion should take care of that.)

If anyone wants to do a collab by making our own original song them I'm in :D . I don't like covers muchly...

Re:Song Collabs

Posted by Rivers Cuomo - 2007/11/19 14:13

hey washburn, if you want to collab on a different song, just make a new thread and title it "(whatever song) collab" after mayonaise I dont want to use this thread for any other collabs, it'll get too long and messy:billy

Re:Song Collabs

Posted by HeavyMetalMachine - 2007/11/19 21:01

Has anyone downloaded my part yet?
I posted it along time ago and I'm waiting for someone to add on to it.
Is anyone doing any thing with it right now?

Re:Song Collabs

Re:Song Collabs

I worked on it Sunday night, but wasn't satisfied with the outcome. Just couldn't get the sound right for some reason.

I'm thinking an acoustic version may be in order. Thoughts?

I've always thought it would be cool to cover the original version but I'm fine either way. It depends on what everyone else wants.

Oh, um, I was messing around with it and discovered I couldn't get the sound I wanted to overdub over yours without retuning my guitar, which I did not want to do.

Oh. I'm assuming you weren't playing the distorted part, right? Cause that part's standard tuning.

Yes but what's the point? May as well do it acoustic & do a slightly different version at least.

Anyways, I'm not contributing I'm just critising ha ha :P!

It will be slightly different...I don't recall an ebow in the original :) I've tried other things out as well, but I'm still working with it.

I overdubed HMM's acoustic with an electric guitar, but it didn't seem to mesh well, especially with the more mellow intro. Now I'm thinking an acoustic lead on the intro and a slightly distorted for the rest.
