Coffee Anyone?

Where do you get it, and how do you take it?

I find myself drinking more and more coffee these days, and I really enjoy it. I'm on my third cup this morning and I have a nice little caffeine buzz going. I'm not big in the coffee house scene, but there's a cool independent place near by that makes a great cup of joe. They've got a nice patio area for live music too. Anyway, I don't discriminate. I like all kinds...flavored, frozen, dark ect.

you?

Nah, I'm a chai/green tea girl. Coffee, in no matter what incarnation, tastes offensive to me.

Hmmm... I love coffee; drink it all the time and actually prefer instant to brewed if its the right brand. Must be white though... and sugar in coffee is a crime!

But Green tea is also wonderful heheh

Anyway, if you dont like coffee, you must admit it does smell good!

I drink an insane amount of tea, I like lots of tea. I'll drink the odd latte if it comes my way. I take tea without sugar and latte's with it. Actually I'm gonna make some tea now.:D

I had some tea the other day and it wasn't good. I tried both earl grey and black tea. It wasn't disgusting or anything, just not my cup of tea (pun intended).

I drink the weirdest tea.

It's still the sugarless all natural stuff.

Like, Orange Morraco, something Ginger, Indian Spice, all that good stuff.

I don't normally like hot drinks (even a relatively harmless hot chocolate) but recently I've been drinking lots and lots of tea. I quite like to make it by dissolving the sugar in the hot tea (after removing the teabag) before i put in the milk. Tastes dreamy...

Coffee, on the other hand, I can only force myself to drink when I want to stay awake and I'm VERY tired. The most disgusting thing I've ever tasted is a half full lukewarm cup of coffee that I neglected for about half an hour, that I decided I should chug down to re-boost my caffeine levels.

I put the milk in the tea with the teabag still in, then I squeeze the teabag to get all of the wonderful tea-ish goodness. It's a delicious taste sensation.

This is true. I just read an article in Men's Fitness about it. People who drink tea on a daily basis tend to lose more weight. Coffee isn't necessarily bad for your, but when people start putting tons of sugar and creme in it then yes. The caffeine also helps to jumpstart your metabolism.

in some tea, not all of it though.

But yeah, that's why people from china live so long. All they drink is tea.

Try this, it's what had me babbling like a buffoon in this here forum:

http://www.thepumpkins.net/component/option,com\_fireboard/Itemid,150/func,view/id,40012/catid,1/

- Take one sturdy coffee mug.
- Fill it halfway with coffee. Yes.
- Use only as much boiling water as you need to dissolve this coffee.
- Get a bag of caster sugar out of the pantry, and pour it in generously for about five seconds.

- Fill the mug up with boiling water again until it is about 90% full.
- Top up with a dash of milk.
- Serve, and don't enjoy.

I grew up drinking black tea, so to me it's nothing new. Also Chai is nothing new either, "Chai" the word itself means "Tea" in Farsi, plus we never had tea bags in my house, we always had tea leaves some relative would send us.

I'm addicted to coffee, I love it. I drink Peete's Coffee, I think it's only on the West Coast though.

Anyone here try Turkish Coffee? It's really good. The Turkish coffee readings at the end are pretty fun too.

Honestly, I'm addicted to coffe somehow!

I can't get started a day without having one (or two) cups of black coffe and listening to a brillinat song while drinking...that's a little resort for me and I enjoy it:)

I drink one (very large) cup of coffee every morning. weekdays it's free at work...it's nothing fancy...just a cup of folgers with a little creamer in it. on weekends I brew a half pot at home. F@!% Starbucks and most coffee shops. when a single cup of coffee costs more than an entire meal at most places, there's something wrong.

So I'm not a coffee drinker, but I might have to make an exception for the new McDonald's iced coffees. The vanilla latte is SO GOOD and mondo caffeinated. Way less expensive and stomachache inducing than Starbucks.

Coffee's free at my work too (we have one of those where you can brew one cup at a time, and there's tons of flavors), so I drink around 2-3 cups before lunch. Sometimes I'll have one in the afternoon, but thats a rare occasion. They have this one flavor Mocha Nut Fudge...and damn, it's insanely tasty.

Does a mocha/vanilla Frappacino count? Like the starbuck's one that come in glass bottles.

Tea is disgusting to me as well as regular old coffee. Actually Jasmine tea is alright.

i love coffee. i especially like iced/ blended stuff, but i also like flavored lattes and cappuccinos, etc. i always need coffee at work though. i have to get up at 4:00am and be to work by 6:00am on the weekends. :dead so i need lots of espresso.

i like tea though too. :monocle

i especially like black teas- earl grey, orange pekoe, and english breakfast tea. i also like white tea and some red teas.
