
The Cure to Release New Singles

Posted by superchrist - 2008/05/01 15:54

Taken from the Cure's website:

The Cure, one of the most revered British bands of the past quarter-century, have unveiled their plans to release four A & B side singles, one each month starting May 13th, leading up to the release of their thirteenth studio album, as yet untitled, which will be out on Suretone/Geffen Records September 13th. It will be the band's first album of new music since 2004's self titled album The Cure. Physical and digital singles will be available for purchase in store and on all digital partners.

Why the 13th of each month? The forthcoming album is The Cure's thirteenth studio album... A lucky number indeed!

First single "The Only One" (released May 13th) includes the b-side "NY Trip"; second single "Freakshow" (released June 13th) includes the b-side "All Kinds Of Stuff"; neither b-side will appear on the album. Both tracks were produced by Robert Smith and Keith Uddin. July 13th and August 13th singles will be announced shortly...

If you go to thecure.com , you can hear a clip of the first single.

=====

Re:The Cure to Release New Singles

Posted by pierowmaniac - 2008/05/02 04:39

Great news, I cant wait :D

=====

Re:The Cure to Release New Singles

Posted by HeavyMetalMachine - 2008/05/03 12:13

Awesome, I'm pumped.

=====

Re:The Cure to Release New Singles

Posted by Teej212 - 2008/05/04 13:16

excellent!

=====