
Lakota Sioux Secede From US, Declare Independence

Posted by EasternMind - 2008/05/09 12:56

This is a large deal, and I hadn't known about it until just recently. I have signed up and am already becoming involved in the forum that they have on their site, and I just wanted to share this information with anyone else who might be interested!

Here's the news article about it:

Haha, awesome.

That is cool, we have a knew neighbor. Also, I love how they got the US on a technicality, just like the US fucks so many people over on technicalities.

very interesting, i have always felt that the us government stole the lands from the native americans. good for them, i wish them all the best of luck. damn the man!!

I agree about the technicality part. It seems like there is little or no wiggle room for the U.S. to get out of this one, because who can deny that the Native Americans were there first? The only issue I see happening is simply the government not paying attention, on purpose, and putting it aside as some sort of joke.

The thing is, the U.S. population is heavily reliant on popular media for their everyday news, in general, and the everyday new won't cover this one bit, as far as I can tell already.

I'm really hoping that the Sioux get compensation for their losses. They deserve it!

I am glad that people actually seem concerned. Thank you all for your posts.

I've been spreading the news to just about everyone I know, and they have all been just as surprised.
