I actually Friday 13th is a pretty lucky thing for me ... no black cats, didn't walk under ladders, didn't smash any mirrors, and whatever other urban myths there are lol.

I actually had quite a good day, chem teacher said we won't get an assignment but a practice exam, maths teacher went off-topic all lesson and we did jackshit work, then had middle of the day off to go 4WDing in the bush and roll tyres down hills and just had a relaxing day haha ... i like friday the 13th

A friend of mine was born on the 13th of a month, and when he was 7 his birthday was on Friday the 13th. Well his older cousin was giving him crap about how his birthday was going to fall on Friday the 13th and how it was going to be a bad day blah blah blah....so as each day goes by he is getting more apprehensive and worried about his birthday. The day before his birthday comes, which just happened to be his cousins birthday, and there is a HUGE storm, thunder lightening, darker than dark, huge winds...even a tornado that took out half the town (all people lived..yay). So now my friend is shaking in his shoes...wondering if the day before his birthday was so bad gulp how was HIS birthday going to be. So he wakes up that morning...opens one eye...then another to his best day ever thusfar. It turned out to be a beautiful day in all ways. So Friday the 13th is his lucky and well looked towards day. PLUS now he can give his cousin crap for the rest of their lives.

i went to Wahoos Fish Tacos to watch my friends play some music and someone gave me a huge free cookie. Then i walked over to guitarcenter where I find out that there is a new Fresh Cuts CD and I pick one up for free.

sounds like a good end to the day to me.

Uh, I found out I didn't get tickets to the Ting Tings show tonight. That's unlucky. :(
