
Pipe Dream - new song up.

Don't know weather this should be in the general forum or the craft and creativity one, but I'll put it here seeing as this forum gets more activity :D

A two-man band, reminiscent of SP v2.0 so it seems.

"Marquis" is the newest track, which is in the songs box, the second newest is "IXIII" (pronounced "one-thirteen") is the second newest, and it's in the video box.

Lemme know what you think!

If I can't get you interested, I'll promise to listen to your stuff first, if you have any that is.

pretty good ;)

do you have any songs with singing or is it all instrumental rifts? and are you playing the guitar with a violin bow there (i presume that was you)?

Yes, that was not long before my hair was murdered.

We still have to get around to record vocals.

Being able to record drums was a big breakthrough.

That track there, by the way, was all me. I tried recording it as quickly as I could, so I could get a rough idea of recording a whole song. That was done from last Friday through the weekend and Monday when I was home sick. I only spent about five hours on it all up.

I think it will be approximately ten gazillion times easier when my mate Jo comes round to record with me.

We can also practice getting the mix of the microphones right, because something about the drums (I'm not going to say it specifically so everyone who isn't an audiophile suddenly notices it) is not right at all.

And it's not an upside down happy face, it's an upside down sad face.

or an upside-frown.

Booyah!
