As this site gets bigger could we make a bigger seperation than "sp/billy, general, and creative" and have moderators for different boards, if we do i would love to be apart of that, especialy jimmy and drumming boards :D as i am writing this i realise this should be in the site sugestions, oh well. to late i think it would be great if we had more boards- i was just thinking that the other day- a solo albums board would be great- like where we could talk about james iha, MADM, jimmy chamberlin complex ect.

Nahhh, I like there just being three boards, it's nice, for some reason it seems a lot nicer than looking thru loads of boards, I like it, it's different.

i really like that theres only three boards, simpler, but it wouldnt be fun if there were too many people, but for now its good :yay

I like there only being three boards, simpler that way. Especially since a post may need to go into multiple catagories, so it'll end up being very hard to navigate and search for things

I've been a mod on forums before... you should really only start making more specific boards when these start to get overrun with EVERYTHING. If you just make more boards for the heck of it, chances are they all slow down, and some don't get used at all on the other hand, it's sometimes easier to check, there are only a few updated threads per board, it's not like a pageful my vote is to wait, but it's a good suggestion anyhow, not nesesarily concerning the three page system, but maybe a few of us could have some jobs, you know, to take some heat off murder
